

Food For Thought

November 2024

Newsletter for the food and beverage sector

Welcome to our Food For Thought newsletter, bringing you the latest sector news and updates directly from trusted legal experts.

In this edition we have insight from Julie Gowland on the rise of criminal food offences, Rebecca Bond on the growth of ghost kitchens, Laura Gray on how to be successful in the food and beverage market, and Anousha Davies on protecting the IP of your brand.

If you have any questions or queries about anything in this edition, please do get in contact with a member of our Food & Beverages Team.

Ed Savory

Partner and Head of Food & Beverages

T: 01603 756479

E: edward-savory@birketts.co.uk

Featured articles

Dining in deceit: the rise in criminal food offences

Julie Gowland discusses how criminal food offences can take many forms, ranging from minor regulatory breaches to serious crimes involving food adulteration or contamination.

Read more →

The growth of ghost kitchens

Rebecca Bond explores the rise of “ghost kitchens”, also known as dark kitchens, cloud kitchens, or virtual kitchens.

Read more →

Recipe for success

Laura Gray shares the 'secret ingredient' for food and beverage companies looking to break into the market.

Read more →

Protecting the IP of your food or drinks brand – is it worth it?

Anousha Davies explains why protecting IP rights in the food and beverage sector has become ever more valuable to put businesses in the strongest position to stand out from competitors.

Read more →